

Replica Field Marshall's Baton

To See Photos of these batons, please go to:

<http://www.themarshalsbaton.com/Replica%20batons%20for%20sale.htm>

Replica Batons For Sale

Note: I get many inquiries on batons and questions as to when 'economy' versions of these will be available. I hope at sometime in 2008 to be able to offer 'economy' batons at more affordable prices for the common collector and am attempting to work with other sources and suppliers in making this a reality. For now, I only have available what you see offered here. These high end replicas are quickly escalating in value and getting harder to find so I expect the prices will continue to go up. The 'economy' versions, if ever produced, will not be of the same quality as the pieces currently listed here and will likely still be somewhat pricey due to the amount of detail and workmanship involved in creating them.

Heer Generalfeldmarschall's Formal Baton

Nicely made replica of a Heer (army) field marshals formal baton, named to GFM Model. Does not have a case.

Heer Generalfeldmarschall's Formal Baton

Beautifully made museum quality replica of an army field marshals formal baton, named to GFM Rommel. Complete in black leather case and maker marked.

No Longer Available

Grand Admiral's Formal Baton

Absolutely stunning museum quality replica of a Kriegsmarine Grand Admirals formal baton of World War Two Vintage, accurately made to the finest detail. Deep blue velvet covers the shaft of this formal baton upon which alternating wehrmact eagles, iron crosses and fouled anchors are embedded. The end capitals are gold with two gold rings surrounding a silver inscription ring with a raised anchor chain motif. The end plates of the batons display a U-Boat Badge at the upper end and a black swastika at the bottom end as is correct. This pattern of baton was the Donitz design, yet the inscription band has Grossadmiral Raeders name on it. One might assume that this was done intentionally to prevent this from 'mistakenly' being sold as original. Dark blue leather case decorated by gold national eagles, with white silk and black velvet padded interior.

No Longer Available

#4135

Luftwaffe Generalfeldmarschall's Formal Baton

Beautifully made replica of a Luftwaffe field marshals formal baton, named to GFM Kesselring. Complete in blue gray leather case and maker marked.

SOLD